IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Colena Elizabeth Burge, who passed away three years ago, April 3, 1975.

Dear God please take this message to our loved one up above.

Tell her how much we miss her and give her all our love.

It broke our hearts to lose her, but she did not go alone.

A part of our lives went with her,
The day God called her home.
Sadly missed by her family

Check Your Air Conditioner

Your room air conditioner or your central air conditioning system will operate more efficiently and deliver cooler, cleaner, dryer air if it is thoroughly checked and put in top operating condition before the peak cooling season begins. Simple do-it-yourself maintenance and upkeep can provide more cooling per watt from your unit and help lower electricity costs by reducing energy consumption.

Several hints for more efficient operation of both room and central systems are offered by the customer service department at Amana Refrigeration, Inc.

- For room air conditioners:
  —Clean or replace the air filter.
  —Clean the evaporator and condenser coils. If possible, remove the unit from the window and clean the exposed condenser coil with a vacuum or a stiff brush, being careful not to damage the coil's fins.
  —Check the fan motor. Even for "permanently" lubricated models a few drops of oil will improve efficiency. SAE 20, non-detergent motor oil is excellent.
  —Touch-up paint on chips and rust spots and a coat of car wax on the outer cabinet will reduce weathering.
  —Good quality furniture wax applied to wood front models at the beginning of the season and monthly thereafter will protect and preserve the finish longer.
- When re-installing room units removed during the cooler months:
  —Make sure rodents and bugs have not gotten into the interior of the unit.
  —Tip the unit slightly to the outside to assure water will drain toward the condenser coil.
  —Check your electrical circuits to insure that during the winter additional loads haven't been added that would significantly lower the power available.
- On central air conditioning systems, Amana recommends:
  —Clean or change the air filter.
  —Adjust the blower fan to cooling speeds if it had been changed for the heating season. The fan motor may also need lubrication – the same SAE 20 non-detergent motor oil is good.
  —Clean the outdoor coil by washing with a hose.
  —A coat of car wax will help preserve the appearance of the outdoor unit.
- Amana also provides the following tips for better operating efficiency in the cooling season for all systems — room units or central cooling:
  —Draw the shades on windows exposed to the sun in the morning or afternoon to reduce the sun's heating effect.
  —Keep doors and windows closed as much as possible to keep hot air, humidity and dust outside.
  —For peak efficiency, set your thermostat at the desired temperature and leave it. Frequent adjustment wastes energy and causes unnecessary wear on equipment.
  —Use the kitchen exhaust fan to remove heat, humidity and odors when cooking.
  —If practical, schedule the use of heat producing appliances during the cool early mornings or evenings. By washing and drying clothes, baking and frying during these cooler periods, you can reduce the air conditioning load.

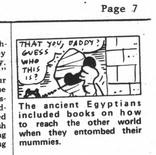
THEN and NOW

THEN: More than a century ago, fish and chips were eaten in England. The first commercially produced fish and chips were prepared by Joseph Malin in 1865 in his East London shop, "Malin's of Bow." Fillets of whitefish were battered, deep fried, served with chips (oversized french fries) and sprinkled with malt vinegar. They soon were considered as important an English ritual as an afternoon cup of tea.

NOW: Not only Englishmen but Americans can enjoy this famous dish today. The original "Malin's of Bow" was purchased by Arthur Treacher's Fish & Chips, the international specialty restaurant chain, and the grandson of Joseph Malin helped train their personnel in fish and chip preparation, using the original English cooking processes.



The ancient Egyptians included books on how to reach the other world when they entombed their mummies.
